TITLE:

Station Name Changes for June 2012 Map

PURPOSE:

To obtain Board approval of station name changes for the June 2012 system map.

DESCRIPTION:

As part of the communications planning for the Blue/Yellow Realignment, work was initiated to revise the system map and also to review station names which are a critical element of system wayfinding. Following a review of the station name policy launched early this year in July, the Board voted to reaffirm and amend the policy. Under the policy, proposed station name changes or new names are to come to the Metro Board for approval from the jurisdictions, along with a funding commitment to change the name throughout the system on station signage, maps and so forth. In the event of system-wide changes, the policy allows for jurisdictions to fund only the actual expenses incurred above and beyond the costs already being incurred as a result of the changes.

Other tenets of the station naming policy include the following:

- Names should identify the station locations by geographical features or centers of activity, provided that landmark names are within one-half mile of the station (walking distance); selected geographical names may be derived from those of cities, communities, neighborhoods, squares, circles, Metro-intersecting streets, etc.
- Names should be distinctive and evoke imagery in the mind of the patron; i.e., graphic, colorful, or euphonious names are preferable to mechanical names such as street numbers or letters.
- Each station name should be no longer than 19 characters (including spaces and punctuation), except for transfer station names, which should be no longer than 13 characters.

To date, Metro has received seven station name change proposals. One of the names has since been withdrawn by the District of Columbia. The following is a list of the remaining proposed changes, policy compliance issues and customer research results.

- New York Ave-NoMa
Gallaudet U
 - Over character limit (28); no direct funding commitment - possible 3rd party; community support activity underway; unfavorable customer reviews
- Forest Glen-Holy Cross Hospital
 - Over character limit (31); no direct funding commitment - 3rd party commitment; community support activity not conducted recently; commercial naming rights issue; mixed customer reviews
- Smithsonian
The National Mall
 - Over character limit (28); no direct funding commitment - possible 3rd party; community support activity complete; favorable customer reviews
- Waterfront-Arena Stage
 - Over character limit (22); no direct funding commitment - possible 3rd party; community support activity complete; commercial naming rights issue; mixed customer reviews
- Navy Yard-Ballpark
 - Meets character limit; no direct funding commitment; community support activity complete; favorable customer reviews
- King St-Old Town
 - Meets all policy tenets; mixed customer reviews

Additionally, a primary/secondary naming approach was adopted to grandfather existing names that exceed the 19-character limit. Moving forward, any future primary/secondary names will also be limited to a total of 19 characters, including spaces and punctuation. Based on both the station naming policy and customer research, Metro has compiled a list of existing station names that are being converted to the primary/secondary listing on the June 2012 map.

FUNDING IMPACT:

Funding for station name changes beyond the scope of planned system map changes is committed by the requesting jurisdictions.
