TITLE:

Public Hearing on Peak Fares for Peak Service

PRESENTATION SUMMARY:

Metro plays a vital role in transporting riders during regional events. There are additional costs associated with supporting these events that must be recovered to Keep Metro Safe, Reliable, and Affordable (KMSRA).

PURPOSE:

Board authorization to conduct a Compact Public Hearing on changes to Metrorail fares during regional events.

DESCRIPTION:

Key Highlights:

- The region hosts several regional events each year and Metro incurs additional costs to support regional events.
- The use of peak-period fares would enable Metro to recover extraordinary costs associated with regional events, provide adequate staffing and support services for these events, and keep Metro safe, reliable, and affordable.

Background and History:

- Metro plays a vital role in transporting riders during regional events such as:
 - Independence Day
 - Presidential Inauguration
 - Papal Visit – September 2015
 - Women's March – January 2017
 - March for Our Lives – March 2018
- Ridership demand during regional events is strong, requiring peak service levels
- To accommodate the need Metro provides rush-hour service levels throughout the day for these events
- Peak service support also required – operations, customer service and transit police

Discussion:

- Metro needs to recover service delivery costs for regional events to stay within the Keep Metro Safe, Reliable, and Affordable (KMSRA) budget.
- Metro is proposing the use of the peak-period fare structure during regional events.
- Peak fares are currently in effect weekdays (except holidays) from opening to 9:30 am and 3-7 pm. With peak fares, the cost of a rail trip is $2.25 rather than $2.00 for short trips, while the cost of the longest trips would be $6.00 rather than $3.85.
- Metro seeks public input on its proposal to implement peak fares for regional event days, whether the day occurs on a weekday, weekend or holiday.
- With Board approval, staff will conduct a joint Compact Public Hearing on this proposal and related proposals on parking rates that were authorized for a Compact Public Hearing on July 12, 2018.

FUNDING IMPACT:

Peak fares for regional events would help Metro to recover some, but not all, additional costs associated with these events.
