

Metro Earth Day Art Project Release Form

In honor of Earth Day (April 22), Metro's Office of Community Engagement invites K-6 school students from Washington, DC, Virginia, and Maryland to submit 2D handmade artworks celebrating the role played by public transportation in protecting our environment and supporting livable communities.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) will conduct activities for its Earth Day Art Project that may be publicized by local and/or national news media and used by WMATA to promote the Metro system. These activities may include, but will not be limited to, use of the student artwork for art projects, student interviews, photographs and/or videos on websites, social media such as Facebook and X, print or online publications, or videos. WMATA will not compensate the student or the student's parents/legal guardian for use of the artwork, or for use of the student's name, voice or photographic likeness.

I/we GRANT PERMISSION for my child's name, voice, photographic likeness and student work to be used by WMATA, its employees, agents and contractors, journalists or photographers employed by news media outlets in connection with the Earth Day Art Project.
